

ASKS $42,612,439 FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS IN 1917

The teaching public school children in 1917 the Board of Education wants $42,612,439—approximately $18 a pupil, according to the official budget estimate, made public yesterday by Leo Abrams, Chairman of the Board's Finance Committee.

This is an increase of $2,744,418, or 6.9 per cent, over the amount appropriated for 1916, and is planned to cover, Mr. Abrams says, the tuition of 25,000 more children in the elementary schools and 7,000 more in the higher studies than attended the present year.

The student economy, he adds, has been added to in making up the budget, and but $154,672 of the entire sum represents "new proposals and special items which may be said to be wholly discretionary. More than $40,000 of the increase in the budget, he states, is demanded by the Equal Pay Law as applied to teachers' wages.

COURT STENOGRAPHER VICTIM OF OVERWORK

Wisch Taken to Bellevue After Phoning for Men to Arrest Labor Leader.

Arnold J. Wisch, of No. 103 Lincoln Avenue, Rockaway Park, chief stenographer of the Court of Special Sessions, was taken to Bellevue Hospital for observation to-day after he had given Police Headquarters a busy half hour. Overwork, it was stated, had caused the young man to cherish the hallucination that he had been assigned to arrest William B. Fitzgerald, Organizer for the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees.

Lieut. Hornbuckle was at his telephone in the First Branch Detective Bureau when Wisch called up and asked for two husky detectives "at once."

"I have two warrants for Fitzgerald," he said. "He has been indicted for trying to stick up Shonts and Hedley."

Detective Edward Laukeman was sent and found Wisch in his office in the Criminal Court Building. He seemed to be nervous and much disturbed.

"Glad you came," said Wisch. "I would go and get this man myself but he is a big husky person and I was afraid to go alone."

It was apparent to the detective that something was wrong with Wisch.

"I'm a little afraid to go alone, too," he said. "Jump in my automobile and we will drop by headquarters and get two more men."

When Wisch reached headquarters a nurse was called from Bellevue and he was taken there.

CORONER MAKES ARREST.

Narrowly Escapes Being Cut by Infuriated Man.

On his way home to No. 30 Millmor Street, Williamsburg, early to-day, Coroner Ernest C. Wagner found three men in a fight near Roebbing and Hop Streets. With the assistance of Police man Bovan he arrested Felix Mark, thirty years old, of No. 14 Ten Eyck Street. Mark put up a struggle and almost succeeded in wounding Mr. Wagner with the knife with which he had stabbed his former antagonist, John Lucy of No. 125 North Fifth Street and Anthony Makosky of No. 187 North Fourth Street. The wounded men were not seriously hurt.
